

Chore chart for couples

One job per row, written as the whole responsibility. One owner, not two. A rough weight in minutes per occurrence. Then add each person's column up: the gap between the two totals is the point of the page.

Before you start

1. Write the jobs down first, both of you, before any names go on.
2. Say each job as the whole thing: not 'shopping' but keeping the list, noticing what has run out, planning the week, and the shop.
3. One name per row. Two names means neither of you owns it.
4. Move whole rows, never halves.
